To help us make a quick decision, please ensure that we are given as much information as possible, including specific countries and areas of travel, number of trips per year and duration of each stay.

The following guidelines are indicative only and may change depending on the customer's individual circumstances including occupation, activities, health and precise area of travel. They may also change quickly due to local events.

Application process checklist

The following checklist aims to make things easier for you, when completing your customer's application.

1 Ensure the application questions are answered carefully

To increase the likelihood of your customer's policy paying out if they need to make a valid claim in the future, they should:

- answer all the questions carefully
- provide correct and complete information
- make all disclosures in English
- answer all questions to the best of their knowledge and belief.

2 Provide as much information as possible

Avoid vague answers by encouraging your customer to provide as much information as possible. Please send us all the information your customer provides, even if you think it may not be relevant.

3 Confirm your customer's answers with them

Show your customer a copy of the answers which will be submitted on the application form.

Please remember that:

- If any mistakes or omissions are found, you or your customer should tell us straight away.
- You or your customer should inform us of any changes to their health or personal circumstances which occur before the cover that they have applied for starts.

Multiple policies and contract combinations

All contract types will be reviewed and evidence requested, based on the contract with the most requirements listed.

For example

- In case of equal sums assured for both life and critical illness policies, the critical illness limits table on pages 9 and 12 will be used, as applicable.
- In the instance of a combination of decreasing or level term assurance, the level term tables on pages 7 and 10 will be used, as applicable.

Disclosure

To ensure full disclosure, your customer should tell the truth and provide full information during the application process.

We rely on the accuracy and completeness of the information that you, your customer, or anyone who acts on their behalf, gives us. We use this to help us decide the amount your customer should pay and the terms we are able to offer them.

You should not assume that we will get a piece of information from a particular source, your customer's doctor, for instance. Your customer should make it their responsibility to ensure that they or anyone else who acts on their behalf, including yourself, has given us complete and accurate information. Without complete and accurate information, we may not pay a future claim.

Encouraging smart disclosure

We aim to offer terms that reflect the degree of risk to us.

Subject to our medical evidence limits, the more detailed the information provided, the more likely we are able to avoid the necessity for additional evidence and the time delay that goes with it. Below are some examples of smart disclosure:

Poor disclosure	Smart disclosure
Slight hearing loss.	Slight hearing loss since birth in left ear only. No deterioration and does not affect ability to work. No time lost from work.
Underwriting decision	Underwriting decision
Attending Physician's Report (APR) had to be obtained as no details of date, duration, treatment etc., were provided.	An underwriting decision can now be made as full details given, avoiding the need for, and delay of, the APR. This would be accepted at standard rates.

Ongoing duty of disclosure

Your customer should tell us of any changes after they have completed the application form.

Your customer should tell us if they have a change in health or personal circumstances, which would mean that the information we hold is no longer complete and accurate. This is just as important as giving full and accurate information within an application. Your customer needs to be informed that their responsibility continues until the date their cover starts. If they don't do this, we may not pay a future claim.

For example, we would expect your customer to inform us of:

- any symptoms, whether or not they have needed to see a doctor regarding them
- having or expecting to have any doctor, hospital or clinic consultations, treatment as an in-patient or out-patient or a blood test for any reason
- changes in their occupation or occupational duties
- changes in their family history
- taking up any hazardous sport or pastime
- residing, working or travelling outside their normal country of residence, or an intention to do so.

If they inform us of changes we will tell them exactly how it affects their application for insurance.

Providing full and accurate information, right up until the date the cover starts, helps to ensure that our policy delivers the security that your customer needs.

Additional information

The type of additional information that we may require to support your customer's application includes:

Medical information

We may need to ask for medical information due to the amount of cover your customer has applied for, or as a result of their medical or family history.

Doctors clinics

You can find details of our current list of medical clinics in the Recommended Doctors Clinics Guide, which is available to download from our website. The guide also provides details of how much we will pay towards each of the medical tests that maybe required.

Direct billing and fee reimbursement

Some of our recommended clinics do not have direct billing in place with Friends Provident International. Therefore, tests must be paid for at the time they take place. The cost incurred can be reclaimed by completing the Medical fee reimbursement form which is also available to download from our website.

Attending physician's report (APR)

This is a report that we request from your customer's doctor and is completed from their medical records. This report will include questions about your customer's:

- current health and previous medical history
- any past or present treatment they have received
- details of any tests or investigations.

Occasionally, delays can occur while we wait for this information. Your customer can help to ensure the report is completed and returned to us quickly by providing full contact details for their doctor including a fax number or email address and by contacting their doctor themselves.

If your customer's doctor is in the UK, we will need an additional form completed before we can request this report. Please ask us for an 'Access to Medical Records Act' (AMRA) consent form.

Medical examination

If this examination is required, your customer will need to make an appointment with an English-speaking doctor. For details of recommended surgeries and our preferred clinics, please contact us. The examination will last approximately forty-five minutes and the doctor will ask questions regarding the customer's medical history. Some comprehensive medical checks such as taking their blood pressure and a sample of urine, examining their heart sounds, ears and eyes will also be undertaken. We may also request your customer to provide a blood sample.

HIV test

We will ask for this if cover is above a certain level or as a result of information your customer provides in their application.

We will send your customer a pre-testing leaflet, including a consent form, which should be completed and returned with the test result.

Electrocardiogram (ECG)

We may request an ECG. This tests the electrical activity in the heart and can indicate the possibility of heart disease. Your customer may be required to exercise during the test using a treadmill.

Occupations

We do not categorise our premiums into occupation classes or bands. Most occupations can be accepted at standard rates. However, for some we will require additional information before we can make a decision.

We have the following questionnaires available:

Questionnaire	Use when	Likely decision
Aviation	The customer is involved in commercial aviation. This is not required when the customer is flying as a passenger on scheduled commercial airlines.	If working for a major airline they are likely to be accepted at standard rates depending on the countries visited. Aircrew or pilots in smaller aircraft, or flying to sub-Saharan Africa, may be rated for Life cover. A rating or an exclusion may be applied for TPD and Critical Illness.
Diving	The customer takes part in commercial diving.	Depending on the customer's experience and type of work they may be rated for Life cover or have an exclusion applied for TPD and Critical Illness.
Military services	The customer is involved in security or military training. Often these will be ex-military consultants.	We will only be able to offer cover if the customer is involved in training or consultancy only. If the customer is involved in any form of armed protection or active duty they will be declined.
Oil and natural gas	The customer works in the oil and natural gas industry.	Most occupations are acceptable at standard rates, however we will need to know where the customer is working as this may affect our decision.

Sports and pastimes

Most sports and pastimes can be passed at standard rates. However, we may ask for more information about some higher risk activities:

Questionnaire	Use when	Likely decision
Aviation	The customer is involved in private flying.	Private flying may be rated for Life cover. A rating or an exclusion may be applied for TPD and Critical Illness.
Diving	The customer takes part in scuba diving.	Depending on the customer's experience and type of work they may be rated for Life cover. A rating or an exclusion may be applied for TPD and Critical Illness.
Hazardous sports	The customer takes part in any of the following: Motorsports Powerboat racing Hang gliding Caving Mountaineering or rock climbing Parachuting Yachting	Powerboat racing and motorsport may have a rating applied for Life cover depending on the category of sport. TPD and Critical Illness will usually have an exclusion applied. The decision on caving, mountaineering or rock climbing will depend on how technical the climbs are, the heights attained and the area climbed in. TPD and Critical Illness will usually have an exclusion applied. Yachting may attract a rating for trans-ocean passages or offshore racing.

The following tables on pages 7 to 12 outline what further information or medical evidence may be required from your customer(s). We only pay for medical evidence we have specifically requested.

Financial information

An important part of underwriting any risk is financial underwriting. We must ensure that there is a need for cover, that the level of cover is reasonable and that the customer can afford to pay the premium.

Financial underwriting is assessed based on the total cover in the market, held by the applicant. We take into account existing cover with other companies and other current applications. It is essential that all existing cover and concurrent applications to other companies are disclosed on the application form. Occasionally, we may need additional information to ensure the level and type of cover requested is appropriate for your customer's financial situation.

This may include:

- evidence of their income e.g. a copy of their latest tax assessment or recent pay slips
- a copy of the offer letter from the bank or lender if the application is in connection with a mortgage or loan
- a completed financial questionnaire
- copies of reports and accounts.
